

A CULTURAL HIGH

Hamburg's got a new groove, but does it hit the right note?

page 6

FANTASY ISLAND

Kate Humble thought she wasn't that kind of girl – before visiting Bequia

page 10

WILDLIFE, WINE AND WATERFALLS?

Yes please! Adventures that take in South Africa's hottest highlights

page 5

Travel on Sunday

Desperately
seeking solitude?

An isolated lakeside cabin in Sweden could be just the thing to reduce Chris Leadbeater's stress levels

PILLOW TALK

HOT HOTEL

Starchitect Gert Wingårdh is behind the newly unveiled conversion of Copenhagen's Royal Danish Conservatory of Music into Nobis, one of the city's hippest design hotels. Period features have been retained, but the 77 bedrooms and public spaces have a modern feel with leather, marble, copper and oak.

Most of the furniture, from rugs to statement chairs and crystal glasses, is the work of designers from Denmark or Sweden.

☐ Doubles £215; nobishotel.dk

WORLD'S BEST COCKTAILS

Raise a glass or two at The Savoy's American Bar in London, which has just won the coveted top spot at The World's 50 Best Bars 2017 awards. Barman Erik Lorincz's innovative Coast to Coast Menu, which represents a journey across Britain from north to south, secured the accolade - don't miss A Frosty Reception with birch liqueur and honey, inspired by Sherwood Forest's Ice Age origins. ☐ 020 7836 4343; telegraph.co.uk/tt-savoy

HOTEL AT HOME

Jess Latimer, owner of Cape View Clifton, one of Cape Town's most beautiful boutique hotels, has launched Latimer Living (latimerliving.com), an online interiors shop and décor service, enabling guests to buy their favourite pieces from the property. Products are sourced from artisans in South Africa, Botswana, Kenya and beyond; expect geometric ceramics and raffia lamps.

☐ For more hotel news and experiences, see: telegraph.co.uk/tt-pillowtalk